

Human advice for the AI age.

dear CC is a platform for honest career advice, real stories, and clear data about how technology is changing the job market. It is built for people who want to understand what is happening, what it means for their future, and what they can do next.

Grounded in real industry experience and a deeply human approach, dear CC exists to help people navigate change, find direction, and build meaningful careers in a new economy.

Mission Why it exists today

Dear CC's mission is to help people build meaningful, resilient careers in the age of AI, through honest conversations, insider knowledge, and clear, practical guidance.

Vision Where it is headed

We envision a world where people understand how the world of work is changing, have access to honest guidance, and feel empowered to build careers that are meaningful, resilient, and aligned with who they are.

Audience

Primary:

Gen Z and early-career individuals navigating an uncertain job market and looking for clear, honest guidance on how to build a career in the age of AI.

Secondary:

Educators, employers, policymakers, and organizations working on the future of work who want a clearer picture of how technology is reshaping career paths and opportunity.

Future audience:

Anyone navigating career transitions in a world where technology is rapidly changing how we work.

Brand Principles

Trusted = She knows what she's talking about
Supportive = She understands me
Actionable = She's helping me figure out what to do

Trusted

Credible and honest, grounded in real industry experience. dear CC combines insider knowledge, real data, and real career stories to explain clearly what is happening and why it matters, so people feel informed and confident.

How it should feel:

Clear, intelligent, credible, and real. The design should feel thoughtful, well structured, and trustworthy, while still feeling modern and accessible, not corporate and not overly polished. Authenticity is critical. The brand should be built on real stories, real examples, real people, and real insight.

Supportive

Human, supportive, and optimistic. dear CC is built for people who feel lost, overlooked, or unsure about their future, and speaks to them with respect, empathy, and encouragement, so people feel seen and supported as they navigate their careers.

How it should feel:

Human, warm, approachable, optimistic, respectful, and encouraging. The brand should feel like it understands what people are going through and is on their side. The tone should meet people where they are, whether they feel confused, behind, underestimated, or unsure, and help them feel capable and hopeful about what comes next.

Actionable

Practical, clear, and useful. dear CC turns complex changes in technology and the economy into guidance people can actually use, what skills to build, what roles to explore, and what steps to take next, so people feel empowered and inspired to move forward.

How it should feel:

Clear, practical, structured, and useful. The content and design should help people understand what to do next through guides, frameworks, steps, and resources. The goal is not just to explain the future of work, but to help people navigate it with clear direction.

Tone of Voice

Clear – Explains complex ideas in simple, understandable language.

Direct – Honest and straightforward, without jargon or corporate language.

Intelligent – Insightful and informed, but never hard to understand.

Warm – Human, respectful, and empathetic.

Practical – Focused on what people can actually do next.

dear CC should sound like someone who understands how the industry works, understands what you're going through, and is giving you honest, practical advice about what to do next. Not corporate. Not academic. Not fluffy. Not doom-driven.

Visual Direction

dear CC should feel like a modern media platform built around a trusted voice. It sits at the intersection of editorial content, personal storytelling, and clear data.

The visual style should feel intelligent and trustworthy, but also human, modern, and accessible. It should feel closer to a smart publication or newsletter than to a corporate website or a tech startup.

The brand should feel intelligent but human, modern but trustworthy, and structured but approachable. Crisp, Real, Human

Logo

dear CC logo

The dear CC logo is designed to feel intelligent, modern, and editorial, balancing credibility with warmth. It should feel clear, confident, and highly legible across digital applications.

The logo reflects the brand’s position at the intersection of human advice and the AI age. The brackets add structure and distinction, giving the mark a subtle sense of system, signal, and relevance.

Used consistently, the logo helps dear CC feel recognizable, trustworthy, and contemporary across the website, social, presentations, and brand materials.

“d” is dear should always be lowercase.

Usage Guide

- Use color variations only from approved brand colors.
Do not alter the logo colors.
- Maintain clear space around the logo.
- Keep the logo highly legible and unobstructed.
- Do not distort, stretch, rotate, outline, or add effects to the logo.

Typography

The dear CC typography system is designed to feel editorial, intelligent, and highly readable across digital platforms. The combination of serif and sans-serif typefaces creates a balance between authority and accessibility — reflecting dear CC’s position at the intersection of human insight and the AI age.

Canela — Logo Only

Canela is used exclusively for the dear CC logo and wordmark. Its elegant, modern serif forms give the brand a distinctive and recognizable voice. Canela should not be used for body copy or long passages of text.

Playfair Display — Headlines & Quotes

Playfair Display Medium is used for headlines and italicized quotes. This typeface brings an editorial, publishing-inspired feel to the brand, similar to a modern magazine or journal. It should be used for:

- Page headlines
- Section titles
- Pull quotes
- Editorial moments and featured statements

Inter — Body Copy

Inter is used for all body copy and interface text. It is highly legible on screens and ensures clarity across articles, data, navigation, and UI elements. Inter should be used for:

- Paragraph text
- Navigation
- Buttons
- Labels
- Captions
- Data and charts
- All UI and product text

Colors

The dear CC color palette is intentionally minimal. As a content-driven platform, the primary focus should be on ideas, writing, and clarity — not heavy visual styling. For this reason, the dear CC brand uses a restrained color system built around neutrals and a single accent color.

Primary Palette

- Coral — Accent color
- Black — Primary text and interface
- White — Background and negative space

The coral accent color is used to highlight important elements such as buttons, links, key actions, and small brand moments. Black and white should make up the majority of the interface to keep the experience clean, readable, and focused on content.

Why Only One Accent Color

dear CC is being built quickly and iteratively. To maintain visual consistency while the platform evolves, we are intentionally limiting the brand to a single accent color for now. This helps the brand feel cohesive and recognizable across the website, social, presentations, and future product interfaces.

As dear CC grows, the color system may expand to include additional supporting colors. For now, the restrained palette helps the brand feel clear, focused, and confident.

Usage Guide

- Use coral sparingly for emphasis and key actions.
- Use black for the majority of text and interface elements.
- Use white or very light backgrounds for readability.
- Avoid introducing new colors that are not part of the core palette.
- Color should support the content, not distract from it.

Quotes

dear [CC]

“The pendulum is swinging back. I’m seeing a lot of companies who thought they could replace their marketing creative/comms teams with AI now realize the outputs sound and look like slop. So they’re rehiring people...”

— ALLY BASAK (MARKETING LEADER)”

dear [CC]

“Everything in your life that has led you here today makes your niche. You being yourself wholeheartedly, you following your strengths makes you the unique person, the unique position to do what you do well, to stand out and get hired.”

— SAMANTHA WEN (GEN Z MARKETER)

dear [CC]

“Every accountant now needs to be part technologist — not just understanding the general ledger, but knowing how to prompt engineer contexts. If accounting departments are becoming innovation departments, then only innovators will be hired.”

— MICHAEL MATLOCK (ACCOUNTING LEADER)
